ITALIAN TELLS STORY OF TAYLOR KILL

Public Funeral for Air Dead to Be Held Friday; Some Bodies to Rest in the National Cemetery

ROMA WAS FLYING TOO LOW FOR SAFETY, SAYS ITALIAN OFFICER WHO WAS ONE OF PARTY WHICH NEGOTIATED SALE TO U. S.

(Copyright, 1922, by I. M. S.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Breaking of the control cable on the semi-rigid dirigible Roma was responsible for the disaster only because the vessel was flying too low.

Had the cable snapped while the premier's headquarters of the air was sailing at greater altitude, the vessel could have been glided to earth with engines throttled, the toll of dead would have been zero and the giant flyer would have been intact.

Col. Guidoni is thoroughly familiar with the technique employed in the construction of the Roma, having studied it in the making in Italy.

The danger in flying too low was never more forcefully demonstrated than in the sad fate of the Roma, the use of whose precious human freight was lost so recently by its government.

Great commendation was given the command and crew of the Roma by Col. Guidoni, who asserted he knew many of them personally.

Col. Guidoni said that the failure of the command to execute their difficult task in the most expert fashion, Guidoni said, "They could have done nothing more than they did, considering the height at which they were flying."

Had the charged transit wire not been struck there would have been no fire and no explosion. Had there been greater distance to fall, they could easily have righted the ship.

The more breaking of the elevator cable was a trifling matter, such great faith in the command of the Roma that I still feel there must have been some sensible and necessary reason for the Roma flying so low over uncharted terrain.

Italy has not completed plans for the Napoli, sister ship of the Roma, Col. Guidoni said. There will be slight differences in the new ship from the Roma in that the Napoli will be somewhat larger, possess slightly greater power and her envelope will hold 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

The general style of the Napoli, however, will be identical with that of the Roma.

The air attaché also stated that there was no official truth in the report that the Italian government had arrived at a tacit understanding with the American authorities that other airships would be purchased at future dates.

and when the service concludes, the bodies in all churches will begin the chant to the dead.

Early today the last body was prepared for burial. The town's resources were strained to the limit to supply the comparatively huge task.

These resolutions will be sent to the bereaved family to the secretary of war and to the flying officers at the funeral.

A public holiday will be declared in Newport News during the ceremony. All civic bodies and the American legation have already signified their intent to attend the services in a body.

SILVER TELLS SENATE FORD'S OFFER IS BEST

"MONEY AND GENIUS" OF FORD PLACES HIM ON A PINNACLE, SAYS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Henry Ford's "money and genius" places him alone among bidders for the government-owned Muscle Shoals water power project, as capable of successfully developing the property.

Concluding his testimony, Silver declared that the farmers are unalterably opposed to congressional acceptance of the Alabama Power company's bid which the committee purposes to hold hearings on beginning next week.

"Ford's capital and genius are enough to satisfy the farmer that he alone can swing the Muscle Shoals development," said Silver.

"You bank a lot on Ford's genius, don't you?" asked Kearns. "Ford has admitted that within a few years he has amassed a fortune of a billion dollars. He got that out of the pocket of the American people."

H. F. MCCORMICK AND DAUGHTER EXPECTED HERE

ROCKEFELLER'S CONSENT WOULD BE OBTAINED TO MARRIAGE.

MISS MATHILDA MCCORMICK

That John D. Rockefeller has not given his consent to the marriage of his 16-year-old granddaughter, Miss Mathilda McCormick, to Max Oscar Weiss, riding master, is the information which comes to the Daily News through an authentic source, from one who is believed close to the world's wealthiest man.

The information also includes the fact that Harold F. McCormick, of Chicago, and his daughter, Miss Mathilda, will visit Mr. Rockefeller at The Casements, Ormond, Beach, shortly, at which time an effort will be made to gain the consent of the oil magnate to the match which is of international interest.

Mrs. McCormick, daughter of Mr. Rockefeller and mother of Mathilda, is reported to have as far refused consent to the match, supposedly because of the age of the Swiss man, given as 41 in some dispatches and 57 in others.

The girl's father, however, has announced the engagement tentatively, supposed dependent upon gain the consent of Mr. Rockefeller.

The date when Mr. McCormick, who is president of the International Harvester company, and his daughter will arrive at Ormond has not been disclosed.

COLLECTION OF FOREIGN DEBT LOOKS BETTER

FUNDING ARRANGEMENTS EXPECTED TO BE DONE BY OCTOBER 1ST.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Conditions in Europe generally are on the mend, and the administration regards the present as a favorable time to inaugurate funding negotiations with the European countries that owe the United States approximately $11,900,000,000, treasury officials announced today.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who is chairman of the American Funding commission, of five, composed of Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Senator Smoot of Utah and Representative Burton of Ohio, said today it was hoped to have the funding negotiations far advanced by fall.

By October, the next semi-annual interest date, the administration hopes to have completed the funding arrangements with the heaviest debtors—Great Britain, France and Italy, who between them owe approximately $9,000,000,000 of the debt.

Negotiations will be begun with Great Britain soon after Secretary Hughes returns from his Bermuda vacation trip. France and Italy will follow.

The treasury, Mellon said, regarded the situation as "much more favorable" now than it was several months ago. European exchange rates have bettered materially. It was pointed out, particularly the British pound sterling, and this is regarded as a most accurate barometer of general European economic conditions.

Despite the cries of poverty that are going up in France, and the assertions by prominent French economists that France never can pay her debt, treasury officials outwardly manifest every confidence that the negotiations with France for payment will be concluded before snow flies.

Some difficulty is expected in arranging terms with the smaller countries like Poland and Czechoslovakia, because of the 25 years limit imposed by the Senate, but in the case of the larger countries—Great Britain, France and Italy, officials indicated no difficulty is expected.

CONFERENCE OPENS AT NEW ORLEANS OF SOUTH COTTON MEN

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23.—With the avowed object of finding a remedy for the poor conditions of cotton growing farmers' finances, a conference of representatives of the principal cotton producing states opened here today at the call of the legation of North Carolina, continued through its afternoon.

Regional efforts for the 1922 crop methods of fighting the boll weevil, and other measures to increase the monetary return for the cotton plant are now to be discussed. Represented today by a week appointed by agreement of the southern states.

R. H. Brown of North Carolina, president of the conference, said that the cotton growers were in a desperate financial condition, and that the conference was being held to discuss the situation.

The conference will continue through the week, and will adjourn on Friday.

Describes Where Gun is Hid; Paid $300 for the Job

Credence Given Story in Los Angeles Where the Story is Claimed

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—Henry M. Fields, county jail prisoner, today told authorities that he hid a gun in an automobile engine, the Hollywood home of William Desmond Taylor and that he had fired the shot which resulted in the death of the film director.

Two men and a woman, passengers in his car, had just entered the bungalow when the shot was fired, he said. One of the men was a Chinaman, a wealthy banker in Tong warfare and dope smuggler. It was this Chinaman that fired the shot that killed Taylor, Fields said.

Fields said he could show Los Angeles officials the exact spot where the gun was hidden, and that he had a few blocks from downtown Los Angeles.

"They told me to hide the gun where they could find it," Fields said. "I hid it in the engine of the car."

"I drove them away from the Taylor bungalow after the shot was fired, waited for them while they searched the gun and then took them into downtown Los Angeles where the Chinaman handed me $300 without a word."

Slowly increasing credence is the story of Fields is reflected in a wire received by Sheriff Coffin today, asking Fields to be kept away from questions until his story can be investigated further by Los Angeles authorities.

His story, the wire adds, checks with the belief of Los Angeles police that Taylor was killed out of revenge for his effort to shield a woman movie star from dope peddlers who wrecked her life once and sought to do it again.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Brooks, of Detroit, formerly a policeman in Los Angeles, says he recognized Fields as a former federal narcotic inspector and revenue agent who was working on the Pacific coast in 1915. Officers admit Fields' revelations have increased their confidence in his story.

He was 25 years of age, and had been married for only two months to Miss Annie Sisson, a Mobile, Ala., school teacher. He had played with the Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Nationals and Milwaukee before coming to the Cardinals.

This woman had become a drug addict, Taylor induced her to go to a sanitarium in the east for treatment. She was cured and returned to the Hollywood studios. When the narcotic king again attempted to drag her down, Taylor stepped in and tried to save her. He was killed.

Adams Still Held

RICHMOND, N. C., Feb. 23.—Regard for Richmond reports that a message had been sent to police of this city identifying a man held here as a suspect in the search for Edward F. Smith, missing valet secretary to William Desmond Taylor, as Henry H. Adams, the man still being held in jail here today.

Police Chief Talbert said today he had received a message from Captain Alexander Wright, chief of the bureau of detectives in Richmond, saying he had known a man named Henry H. Adams ten years ago, but declined to give his prisoner liberty on this. He said no word at all had been received from the district attorney at Los Angeles.

ERSKINE DALE PIONEER

by JOHN FOLY

"It seems you have been amusing yourself with my kinspeople at my expense," Grey drew himself up in haughty silence. Erskine went on: "I have known some lads who were not cowards."

"You remember a promise I made you once?"

"Yes," corrected Erskine. Grey's eyes flashed upward to the crossed rapiers on the wall.

"Precisely," answered Erskine. "And when?"

Barbara, reappearing, heard their last words, and she came forward pale and with piercing eyes:

"Cousin Erskine, I want to apologize to you for my little faith. Mr. Grey, your horse will be at the door at once. I wish you a safe journey—to your command."

Erskine was on the porch when Grey came out to mount his horse. "You will want seconds?" asked Grey.

"They might try to stop us—no!" Erskine bowed. Grey said: "I shall not."

CHAPTER XV

Within half an hour Barbara, passing through the hall, saw that the rapiers were gone from the wall and she stopped, with the color fled from her face and her hand on her heart.

In a few moments she had found Harry and Hugh. Even while their horses were being saddled her father rode up.

"It's murder," cried Harry. "And Grey knows it. Erskine knows nothing about a rapier."

Without a word Colonel Dale wheeled his tired horse and soon Harry and Hugh dashed after him. Barbara walked back to the house, wringing her hands, but on the porch she sat quietly in the agony of waiting that was the role of women in those days.

Meanwhile, Firefly was skimming along the river road. Grey had kept his word. He was waiting between two plantations.

They hitched their horses, and Erskine followed into a pleasant glade—a grassy glade through which murmured a little stream. Erskine dropped the rapiers on the sward.

"Take your choice," he said. "There is none," said Grey, picking up the one nearer to him. "When you are ready," Erskine said. "Ready!" answered Grey, and lunged.

Erskine merely whipped at his blade and sprang backward. He was as quick as an eyelash and lithe as a panther, and yet Grey almost laughed aloud.

All Erskine did was to whip the thrusting blade aside and leap out of danger like a flash of light. It was like an inept boxer flailing according to rules unknown—and Grey's face flamed and actually turned anxious.

Then Erskine's blade caught in Grey's guard, by accident, and the powerful wrist behind it seeking merely to wrench the weapon loose tore Grey's rapier from his grasp and hurled it ten feet away. With his sword's point on the earth, he waited courteously for Grey to recover his weapon.

As Grey rushed for his sword, Erskine heard the beat of horses' hoofs. He snatched it from the ground and turned, and as he rushed for Erskine, Colonel Dale swung from his horse. The sword-blades clashed—and Colonel Dale had Erskine by the wrist and was between them.

"How dare you, sir?" cried Grey hotly. "Just a moment," repeated the colonel sternly. "Mr. Grey, do you think it quite fair that you with your skill should fight a man who knows nothing about foil?"

"There was no other way," Grey said sullenly. "Your country is at war. She needs every man for her defense. Do you not both think your lives belong to your country?"

"Colonel Dale, your nephew grossly insulted me, and your daughter showed me the door. I merely believed what I had been told and I believed it true. Now that I hear it is not true, I am willing to express my regrets and apologies."

"That is better," said Colonel Dale heartily, and he turned to Erskine, but Erskine was crying hotly: "And I express neither."

As they rode back Colonel Dale spoke of the war. It was about to move into Virginia, he said, and when it did—Both Harry and Hugh interrupted him with a glad shout: "We can go!" Colonel Dale nodded sadly.

Suddenly all pulled their horses in simultaneously and raised their eyes, for all heard the coming of a horse in a dead run. Around a thickened curve of the road came Barbara, with her face white and her hair streaming behind her. She pulled her pony in but a few feet in front of them, with burning eyes on Erskine alone.

"Have you killed him—have you killed him?" If you have—She stopped helpless, and all were so amazed that none could answer. Erskine shook his head. There was a flash of relief in the girl's white face, its rock-lessness gave way to sudden shame, and, without a word, she wheeled and was away again—Harry flying after her. No one spoke. Colonel Dale looked aghast and Erskine's heart again turned sick.

CHAPTER XVI

As the dusk gathered that evening, Erskine, looking gloomily through his window, saw Barbara flutter like a white moth past the box-hedge and down the path. A moment later he saw the tall form of Colonel Dale follow her. On the thick turf the colonel's feet too were noiseless, and when Barbara stopped at the sundial he too paused.

"Little girl!" he called, and no lover's voice could have been more gentle. "Come here!"

She turned and saw him, the low moon lighting all the tenderness in his fine old face, and she flew to him. In wise silence he stroked her hair until she grew a little calmer.

"What's the matter, little daughter?" "I didn't want anybody harmed."

"I know. It's too bad, but none of us seem quite to trust Mr. Grey."

"That's it," she sobbed. "I don't either, and yet—"

"I know. I know. My little girl must be wise and brave. Mother is not well and she must not be made unhappy too. Can't my little girl come back to the house now? She must be hostess and this is Erskine's last night."

She looked up, brushing away her tears. "His last night?" Ah, wise old colonel!

She took her father's arm, and when they reached the steps Erskine saw her smiling. And smiling, almost gay, she was at supper, sitting with exquisite dignity in her mother's place. Harry and Hugh looked amazed, and her father, who knew the bit of tempered steel she was, smiled at her.

courageous proudly. Of Erskine who sat at her right she asked many questions about the coming campaign. After supper the little lady examined herself with a smiling courtesy to go to her mother. Erskine found himself in the moonlight on the big portico with Colonel Dale alone.

"Erskine," he said, "you make it very difficult for me to keep your secret. It was a boyish impulse of generosity which made you give this estate to Barbara."

"Never," interrupted the boy. "I have no use—less than ever now."

"Barbara would not accept your sacrifice nor would any of us, and it is only fair that I should warn you that some day, if you should change your mind, and I were no longer living, you might be too late."

"Please don't," Uncle Harry. It is done—done. Of course, it wasn't fair for me to consider Barbara alone, but she will be fair and you understand. I wish you would regard the whole matter as though I didn't exist."

Then Erskine's eyes darkened. "Uncle Harry, you may think me foolish, but I don't like or trust Grey. What was he doing with those British traders out in the Northwest?—he was not buying furs. It's absurd. Why was he hand in glove with Lord Dunmore?"

"Lord Dunmore had a daughter," was the dry reply, and Erskine hung out a gesture that made words unnecessary. Colonel Dale crossed the porch and put his hand on the lad's shoulder.

"Erskine," he said, "don't worry—and don't give up hope. Be patient, wait, come back to us. Go to William and Mary. Fit yourself to be one of us in all ways. Then everything may yet come out in the only way that would be fitting and right."

The boy blushed, and the colonel went on earnestly: "I can think of nothing in the world that would make me quite so happy."

"It's no use," the boy said tremblingly. "I'm not fit for her nor for this life. I can't get over my life in the woods and among the Indians. I can't explain, but I get choked and I can't breathe—such a longing for the woods comes over me and I can't help me. I must go—and nothing can hold me."

"Your father was that way," said Colonel Dale sadly. "You may get over it, but he never did. Good night, and God bless you."

Erskine sat where he was. That path, those flowers, that house, the cattle, those grain-fields, those singing black folk, were all—all his if he but said the words.

There was a light step in the hall, and Barbara came swiftly out and dropped on the topmost step with her chin in both hands. Almost at once she seemed to feel his presence, for she turned her head quickly.

"Erskine." As quickly he rose, embarrassed beyond speech. "I suppose I will always feel guilty if I have made you unhappy." He finally hurried.

Many Artists of Note With Gamble Co. Here Friday

The Ernest Gamble Concert company, which will be the attraction Friday evening at the Auditorium contains several artists, whose reputations are far above the average.

Miss Nello Richeson, the violinist, plays with a warmth and precision that are a joy. She has a splendid style and a superb tone, that is a boon of a violinist. Miss Richeson is a pupil of Eugene Tsaye, the great Belgian violinist, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. Her violin is a Steiner, dating from 1729. The violin is the most popular of instruments. Miss Richeson's legitimate artistry, unmarred by mannerisms, delights thousands.

The Ernest Gamble Concert party has become an institution in the world of music. It has made fifteen transcontinental tours. It is the only American company to tour Northern Africa and Europe. It has visited the West Indies and Central America five seasons. From the Arctic Circle to the Equator, the name Gamble is known wherever good music is loved. America's Overseas Theater League sent it to France to cheer Allied soldiers. The United States government sent it to Panama five times to entertain the Canal zone workers. A great transcontinental railroad uses it almost annually in its welfare activities. Most of the colleges and universities have repeatedly presented these artists. Many of the leading musical clubs, choral societies, orchestras and artist series have included this sterling company. Whenever good music is loved the Gamble party is known from the Equator to the Arctic Circle.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Blocher, who have been spending the season in Seabreeze, left Wednesday morning for their home in Mt. Vernon, O.

The many friend of L. D. Drewery of Seabreeze, will be glad to hear that he is recovering nicely from his recent illness, and hopes to be out again in a few days.

A motor party consisting of J. P. Ball, John Fuquay, Mrs. Ida Upson and son and Edwin Hart of Ocean City, were guests of friends at Daytona Beach on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Garcia, of 140 Halifax avenue, Seabreeze, are the proud parents of an eight and a half pound baby girl, born Tuesday at high noon. This little daughter will be known as Lillian Frances Garcia.

Marrow-Parkhurst Motor Co. to Hold Open House Friday

The Marrow-Parkhurst Motor Co. will hold open house all day tomorrow at their fine new sales room and service station, corner of Main and Live Oak streets, Daytona Beach. There will be music and refreshments to make the occasion a happy one for every visitor. This formal opening of the Oldsmobile distributors for this district marks the presentation to the public of the Triple Cities, the peninsula's finest business block of the latest fire-proof construction, three stories high.

J. W. Camac who has done so much toward the residential and business development of the beach, has just started the construction of the corner building which will be three stories in height of the same brick and tile construction to match his other structure now nearing completion on the upper floors. On the Main street side will be the hotel lobby for the two upper floors of the entire structure and at the very corner a fine large store entrance on Live Oak street.

Ladies Aid Will Continue Service Noonday Luncheon

The Ladies Aid society of the Community M. E. church held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in the main auditorium of the church, instead of in the lower auditorium as is their custom on removal of the portion of the church being removed by the members of the Ladies Aid club who have been working on their Bazaar and Christmas bazaar which will be held this evening.

The subject of serving refreshments for the newly organized club was discussed at this meeting and it was decided that they would continue serving to this class of the church.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

DEALERS

We are proud of our new Show-Room and Service Station. It is one of the finest in the State. Our Repair Shops are equipped for any kind of work. They are going to be KEPT CLEAN—that anyone may drive in, wait on their car while it is being repaired, and not be compelled to wade through treacherous puddles of grease.

It is our wish to acquaint the citizens of these cities with our establishment. We want everyone to see this up-to-date Show-Room and Service Station. We want you to see the various models of OLDSMOBILE Motor Cars which we are displaying on our floors.

A complete stock of Parts, Accessories, Tires, and, in fact, everything that an automobile can use, are ready for your inspection.

We will be open all day. Refreshments will be served, and there will be music also. Nothing will be sold on Friday. We only want you to call, get acquainted with us, and see what we have to offer you in the future.

John C. Howard,
Resident of Many Years, Died Today

John Calvin Howard died at 2:30 this morning at his home, 115 Bay street, after a lingering illness of several months.

Mr. Howard was born in Amesbury, Mass., July 12, 1841, but spent the greater portion of his life in Somerville, Mass., where he was in the drug business for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard first came to Daytona twenty-one years ago and spent two seasons at one of the local hotels, after which they purchased the location of the present Howard Hotel and built there 19 years ago and operated same very successfully until a few years ago when they retired from active business life, and located permanently at 115 Bay street.

The body has been placed in charge of the Baggett-Wetherby Co., awaiting the arrival of Mr. Howard's daughter, Mrs. H. W. Weymouth and her husband who are en route from their home in North Reading, a suburb of Boston, and are expected here at 1 p. m. Friday, after which time, the final arrangements will be made.

Winter Resident Dies
August Buschmann, age 46 years, of Westfield, Mass., who has been spending the season at Ortona, died this morning about six o'clock. The body is in charge of the Baggett-Wetherby Co., and will be sent north the last of the week, accompanied by his widow, who was also spending the winter at Ortona.

Doctor in Ireland
Asks Particulars
About Living Here

When the fame of Daytona spreads as far as Dublin, Ireland, and arouses the interest of prospective residents, it may be said, in the language of the poet, to be "living here."

However, the Daily News has been presented with the tangible evidence that the fame of Daytona has spread even into Ireland. Witness a letter addressed to the "representative of the Florida East Coast Railway, Daytona, Fla.," from Dr. Macgregor Johnston, who locates himself as follows: Errisford House, Bray Co., Wicklow, near Dublin, the Free State of Ireland.

Dr. Johnston says he is contemplating coming to Florida with his family to reside and he wishes to see a copy of the local daily paper and to get some information on real estate and houses both for rent and for sale. He also wishes to know if it will be possible for him to rent a small furnished cottage or residence, with or without land, for a definite period of six or twelve months until he definitely decided on a residence.

Dr. Johnston also wishes to know if there are any Irish folk in or near Daytona. The doctor no doubt will be glad to hear from any of his countrymen living here.

Report Made on Funds Necessary for "Y" Campaign

At a meeting of workers in the Volusia County Y. M. C. A. campaign held in the Masonic Hall last night, it was reported that the Triple Cities are still short about $1,230 of the quota of $5,760.

After some discussion the members of the committees agreed that as there were still a number of prospects on the lists who have not been solicited for a contribution they would continue the canvass until all such persons have been given a chance to subscribe to the fund needed to carry on the Y work in this county.

L. R. Reynolds, county secretary, reported today that DeLand lacks about $1,400 completing its quota and that the campaign workers there expect to finish up the drive tomorrow. The campaign at New Smyrna was postponed until early in March on account of other events which had been scheduled previous to the announcement of the Y campaign.

The total quota for the county is $10,632 and it is expected this sum will be met, if not exceeded, when the final returns are in.

Mr. Harris, of Burlington, Vt., was high gun at the club Wednesday afternoon with the splendid score of 96 out of 100. E. A. Powell, of Linton, Ind., was a close second with 95. These were splendid scores considering the strong south wind which caused the targets to duck considerably.

Mr. Harris does not claim to be a rap shooter, but his splendid scores at the trap lately demonstrates that he has ability and gives promise of making the best of them take notice. Shooting next Saturday at 2:30, with trophy to high gun.

Water Consumers at the Beach Will Soon Vote

Superintendent C. H. Willson, of the Daytona Beach waterworks, is preparing a circular letter to be sent each of the water consumers in Daytona Beach asking for a vote on certain policies pertaining to the operation of the plant. Mr. Willson figures that the consumers of water in Daytona Beach paid last year on an average for each one thousand gallons as follows:

For water at 30c, less discounts, 27.89c
Maintenance 7.72c
Miscellaneous Fees 3.6c
Total 39.21c

In addition to this there was paid through general taxation for interest, sinking fund, and rent of hydrants, $3,053.50.

Campaign March 6
for Organization of Local Y. W. C. A.

A group of women who are interested in the organization of the Y. W. C. A. met in the Palmetto club on Tuesday to map out plans for their work. It was decided to go out for a one-day intensive campaign on March 6th.

The budget for the whole county will be about $2,000. This includes the secretary's salary, the purchase of a car, the upkeep of the car, printing, conference and contingent. On March 6th a territorial canvass will be made, giving everyone a chance to contribute in a large or small way.

Mrs. R. E. Stevens was made chairman of the general preliminary committee. A complete list of the chairman and committees will be published later.

The initial gifts committee plans to begin work at once. This committee will have to do especially with securing large gifts before the actual campaign begins. Persons who would like to contribute to the initial gifts fund will send their contributions without solicitation to Mrs. W. J. Stilling, treasurer.
